

New Jersey Law Librarians Association

April Meeting

Feeling Good About Medical Legal Research

Presented by: Caroline Young, NJLLA Vice-President/President-Elect and Reference and Technology Librarian, Rutgers School of Law - Newark

Most law librarians will be asked to perform medical or health-related research during the course of their careers. This program will provide an introduction to locating and evaluating medical information. Topics will include: defining evidence-based medicine, applying the methods of evidence-based medicine to the process of medical research, and evaluating retrieved information. Effective searching of MEDLINE, using the controlled vocabulary MeSH (the National Library of Medicine's Medical Subject Headings), will also be covered.
