

NEW JERSEY LAW LIBRARIANS ASSOCIATION
NOVEMBER MEETING

Legal Education Looking Forward

Caroline Hatton, a student at Seton Hall Law School and the Symposium Editor of Seton Hall Law Review, will give a review of speeches made at a recent symposium she organized on the future of legal education. The distinguished speakers included deans and professors from several law schools, judges and practicing attorneys, as well as Paulette Brown, the President-Elect of the American Bar Association, who gave the keynote address entitled "Maintaining the Relevancy of a Law School Education in an Evolving Profession."
